Georgia's peach farmers hope for a colder winter this year

By Clint Thompson

Cooler temperatures are needed this winter to avoid another disastrous peach season, according to Jeff Cook, University of Georgia Cooperative Extension county coordinator in Taylor and Peach counties.

Last year's mild winter contributed to Georgia's peach industry suffering an 80 percent loss. Cook estimates that 70 percent of those losses were attributed to Georgia's lack of chill hours. The late freeze this past spring contributed to the other 10 to 15 percent peach loss, Cook said.

"Chill hours are vital to the development of a peach. We didn't have enough cold weather last year, and it showed once we got to harvest time," said Cook, who specializes in peaches.

"Chill hours" refers to the time in which temperatures dip below 45 degrees Fahrenheit. From Oct. 1 through Feb. 15, chill hours are required for peach production

According to Cook, one Georgia peach variety requires 850 chill hours, the highest chill requirement of all varieties grown in Georgia. When that particular variety only got around 450 chill hours last winter, the result was devastating for Georgia peach farmers. At least 800 hours are needed to make a "decent crop," he said.

"We had between 650 and 700 (chill hours) year-before-last and did okay. Last year we were below 500 and we really need about 800," Cook said.

The biggest hit to Georgia's 2017 peach crop was the lack of peaches from July to August, which is typically the largest yielding period.

"The packing sheds were shut down the first of July," Cook said.

Unfortunately for Georgia peach producers, this year's winter forecast is projecting a warmer winter due to La Niña weather conditions. UGA Extension Agricultural Climatologist Pam Knox predicts a 70 percent chance of La Niña conditions occurring from November 2017 through January 2018. La Niña is associated with above-normal temperatures and below-normal precipitation, especially in the southern half of Georgia.

Knox emphasizes that even in a La Niña winter, outbreaks of cold air could still provide chill hours to the peach crop.

"My expectation this year is that chill hours will be lower than normal but are likely to be higher than last year's low numbers," Knox said. "As we transition to neutral conditions in the spring, we also need to be mindful of the possibility of a late frost. Growers will have to keep an eye on conditions in the spring for any cold outbreaks that might come."

Dario Chavez, a UGA College of Agricultural and Environmental Sciences assistant professor in peach research on the UGA Griffin campus, said the peach industry in Georgia should know by the end of December or early January how this winter will compare to previous years.

"It's a weather factor so we really can't do anything about it. It would be different if it were cold and we wanted to protect (the peaches) against the cold. That's something we can do. Making it cold when it's warm — it's impossible." Chavez said.

For more information on Georgia's peach industry, see the UGA Extension blog at blog.extension.uga.edu/peaches/.

A 25-foot red cedar selected to serve as the 2017 Georgia Capitol Christmas Tree arrived in Atlanta on a flatbed trailer.

Oh, Christmas Tree!

Although the inches slowly became feet and the minutes quickly became hours, Christmas finally arrived at the State Capitol Nov. 27 in the form of a 25-foot red cedar. Freshly dug from private land in Locust Grove, the tree was artfully maneuvered into place using a crane, a winch, miles of rope and the brute strength of many men. The tree will be on display in the rotunda throughout December.

A crane operated by Heaton Erectors of Forest Park is used to lift the 3,500-pound tree up to the east entrance of the State Capitol.

The tree is winched into the rotunda as personnel from the Georgia Building Authority and Downey Tree Service of Cumming tie ropes to the trunk in preparation to raise the tree.

The tree vertical, anchored and ready for decorations. Crews had hoped to use a winch to stand the tree up, but ultimately had to raise it by hand.

Swine

If you have questions regarding ads in this category, call 404-656-3722.

Advertisers submitting swine ads must submit proof of a negative brucellosis and pseudorabies test from within the past 30 days. Exceptions are swine from a validated brucellosis-free and qualified pseudorabies-free herd; these operations must submit proof of that certification. If you are faxing or mailing in an ad, the test needs to be sent along with it. For ads submitted online, the test can be attached using the attachments button. Buyers are urged to request proof of a negative brucellosis and pseudorabies test prior to purchase.

Aaron Muhammad worked with Fatima Jones, farm Ioan manager at the Farm Service Agency in Dawson, to obtain a youth loan to purchase his chickens and to build a coop.

Georgia Youth Finds Eggs-cellent Success with FSA Youth Loan

By Dana Rogge

His vision - build an egg empire. Aaron Muhammad, 15, wasn't raised on a farm and had no prior farm experience, but he decided to try something new and discovered his passion for raising chickens. When he's not tackling his school work, he's working on building his eggs-traodinary business in Dawson.

Muhammad decided to raise chickens at the age of 12 to expand his horizons and to try something new. He worked with Fatima Jones, farm loan manager at the Farm Service Agency in Dawson, to obtain a youth loan to purchase his chickens and to build a coop.

FSA Youth Loans help youth between the ages of 10 and 21 start and operate incomeproducing projects in connection with their participation in 4-H, the National FFA Organization, a Tribal youth group, or other similar agricultural youth organizations. Youth Loans provide an opportunity for young entrepreneurs to acquire experience and education in agriculture-related skills.

"Since 2014, I have watched Aaron grow as a responsible youth, taking control of his egg production, keeping records of his expenses and income, making decisions, making payments on time, dealing with disaster and communicating with local FSA loan officials,'

Muhammad is currently in his third semester studying electronics technology at Albany Technical College while continuing to raise his chickens and sell eggs. He currently sells his eggs to family and friends, but would like to become a more well-known source, and supply eggs to businesses such as bakeries.

"I would like to be the first name on people's list when they need eggs," Muhammad said.

He said the Youth Loan helped him to pursue this business venture without putting a financial burden on his parents. He credits his for the USDA Farm Service Agency.

parents for helping guide him through the process of building a business.

"They helped me financially and mentally by giving me tips for building a business as far as what to do and what not to do," Muhammad

Muhammad said through the FSA Youth Loan he has learned how to maintain a line of credit and how to pay debts on time. Aside from the business skills he has acquired, he said he has learned a lot about patience.

"In the city, everything is instant," he said. "With raising chickens, it all takes time. Time to give them water, to feed them, to watch them grow – the whole cycle takes time."

FIELD NOTES: Why do so many farmers name their tractors Allis?

By Amy Carter

So this one day in my former newsroom, I was startled when a hearty bout of mirth erupted behind the newspaper a co-worker was reading. He was the jolly owner of a wicked sense of humor, a vocabulary to make a cop blush and a belly laugh loud enough to drown out the rumble of the

He worked the public safety beat, so his merriment was usually stirred by incident reports detailing encounters between the law and the dumb criminals who kept them in business. On this particular day, he got tickled by a letter to the editor that took issue with his retelling of a mishap at the city docks. To wit, a wench fell from the rigging of a shrimp boat, narrowly missing a deckhand working below.

The story caught the eye of an astute reader, who wrote to inquire after the health of the wench. Assuming she survived the fall unharmed, the burning question in this reader's mind then became: what was the wench doing up there in the first place?

I shall never, ever mistake a winch (a machine) for a wench (a woman), thanks to that reader. It ain't bragging if you really done it, and to prove that point I'll direct you to the Christmas story on Page 1, where I correctly used the word winch twice as a noun and once as a verb in homage to my merry friend.

I'm sure you've heard that old saw, "Sticks and stones may break my bones, but words can never hurt me." My Mama taught me that when I was a first-grader with a bright red birthmark running the length of the left side of my nose. That blemish eventually became my red badge of courage, so to speak, but not before it taught me two important life lessons. First, I hate the song "Rudolph the Red-Nosed Reindeer," so don't ever sing it to me if you want me to be your friend. Second, words matter. A lot.

I learned that lesson again a couple of years ago when a farmer rang me up on the telly to inform me, not unkindly, that the name of the tractor traded at a brisk rate in our pages is ALLIS CHALMERS, not Ellis Chambers or Allis Chamblers or any of the other 53 million permutations of the name that have appeared in these pages through the years.

Southern men pronounce Allis Chalmers in about 53 million different but melodic ways, and I enjoy hearing them all. Some women fall for the eyes, some for broad shoulders – me, I'm an Allis Chalmers girl. No matter how you say it, though, there's only one right way to spell it, and I lie awake at night worrying that somewhere in these pages, we've got it wrong.

We process anywhere from 600 to 800 classified ads every two weeks, plus about a dozen original news and feature stories, so you can see how things might slip through the cracks. We strive to spell every word correctly and to use them all in the correct context and tense, but sometimes we goof.

We're here to help you sell your Allis Chalmers B or John Deere Jubilee tractor quickly and profitably. We want your pecans - or puh-KAHNS - to reach hungry consumers, and we want to help you find the extra hands you need to operate your farm efficiently.

Help us out, if you will, by writing legibly if you mail or fax your ad, and proofread it before hitting the send button when submitting it electronically. Read it aloud and throw some commas in there, too, if all the words seem to run together. We've got some pretty impressive experts backing us up here, but even they scratch their heads from time-to-time over the run-on sentences we receive.

We are thankful for your continued faith in us, and our goal will always be to get as close to perfection as humanly possible. Use whatever words you'd like to let us know how we

LETTER TO EDITOR

Amy,

I wanted to take a minute to share with you the results of this year's fruit tree sale. This is the 5th year we have been raising money to support the Morgan County 4-H program and our numbers this year went far beyond our expectations. Over the past five years, our sales have slowly increased and this year we had an approximate 40 percent increase in sales over 2016.

The Market Bulletin has been such a blessing throughout this process. People are looking for our fundraiser sale form each year and that is exciting! This year we decided to look at how much we sold from the Market Bulletin so we could share that information with you – $3,287.00 of this year's sales came from the Market Bulletin! That is amazing! Thank you for your support and for helping to make a difference in the lives of our Morgan County youth!

Editor's Note: While most dogs spend their days chasing their tails, Georgie, the Georgia Grown mascot, is off chasing his next big adventure. Georgie travels the state teaching children and adults about Georgia's No. 1 industry – agriculture. After watching his rise to stardom in the short film, "Georgie's Drive Through Georgia Agriculture," we decided to bring his stories to print. We hope you'll enjoy reading along as Georgie chases own kind of tales around Georgia. Find the video on YouTube at https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=kLGU2pTKFsU

Georgie's Drive Through Metter

Hello! This is your old pal Georgie, the Georgia Grown mascot. The other day, I was headed to Claxton for a Feed My School event when I stopped in Metter to see one of my favorite places in Georgia. As I got off the interstate and crossed the Michael Guido Bridge, I knew I was headed to the right place. Dr. Guido and his wife, Audrey, started Guido Gardens in 1976 as a place for folks to visit and as a backdrop to film his weekly television spot, Seeds from the Sower. The gardens are open to the public for free 24 hours a day every day, but my favorite time to go is when my wife Gina and I take the pups to see the "Nights of Lights." This special event was started in 1991 and now welcomes more than 40,000 people a year to see 1.5 million Christmas lights in the gardens. The garden displays include a life-size nativity scene and even a recreation of Noah's Ark in Christmas lights! You can only see it Dec. 15-25 from 6 pm to 9 pm daily. Like the water tank says, "Everything's Better in Metter." Especially the Christmas lights!

Seed drive aims to help Puerto Rico farmers rebuild agriculture

Two category 5 storms devastated the U.S. Territory of Puerto Rico earlier this fall, leaving many without homes, power, food and other necessities.

While disaster relief missions often focus on the here-and-now necessities of storm victims, it is also important to offer assistance to help victims weather the longevity of the storms' impact. David Beall, a disaster relief volunteer, is asking Georgia farmers, gardeners and retailers to donate unused seed and supplies to disaster relief efforts.

"I just noticed that there was all of this food that is ready to go but no seeds," said Beall, who lives in Greenville. "The advantages I see by taking seed down, it would help the people in Puerto Rico get a sense of moving forward."

If you would like to donate unused seed

COOK GEORGIA GROWN: Apple Cider Pepper Pie

This recipe from Unicoi Preserves in Sautee-Nacoochee won first place in the Apple Pie Category at Farmview Market's 2017 "Flavors of Fall Festival" in Madison Oct. 21. The recipe uses Georgia-grown apples and Unicoi Preserves Apple Cider Pepper Spread* and is baked in a paper grocery bag. The crust comes together quickly in the food processor and uses Cabot Farmhouse Reserve Cheddar. According to owner Suzy Neal, this recipe is inspired by recipes from Martha Stewart and King Arthur Flour. *Visit unicoipreserves.com for buying info.

Ingredients

Cheddar cheese pie crust

- 1 1/4 cup unbleached all-purpose flour 1/2 teaspoon Kosher Salt
- 1 stick unsalted butter, cold, cut into
- small pieces 1/2 cup Cabot Farmhouse Reserve Cheddar
- 1/4 cup cold water

Apple Pie Filling

- 8 cups Georgia-grown Golden Delicious
- Apples, peeled, cored and sliced. 3/4 cup light brown sugar
- 1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
- 1/2 teaspoon vanilla bean paste
- 1/2 teaspoon freshly ground nutmeg
- 1/4 teaspoon Kosher Salt
- 2 tablespoons lemon juice 3 tablespoons Unicoi Preserves Apple Cider
- Pepper Spread
- 1 dash cayenne pepper
- 1/4 cup unbleached all-purpose flour

Streusel topping

- 1/2 cup granulated sugar
- 1/2 cup unbleached all-purpose flour 1/2 cup Unsalted Butter, cold, cut into slices

Instructions

Cabot Cheddar Pie Crust

Add flour and salt to the bowl of a food processor and pulse to combine. Add cold butter and pulse until the dough looks like coarse meal.

Slowly add the cold water and pulse until mixture just begins to hold together. Add additional cold water by the teaspoon if necessary to get the mixture to the desired consistency. Dough should not be wet or sticky.

Add cheese and pulse until combined.

Pour dough on to plastic wrap and form a round disk. Wrap and refrigerate 30 minutes or overnight. Do-ahead tip: Dough can be frozen up to one month; thaw before using.

Pie Filling

In a large, microwave-safe bowl, combine the apple slices and all pie filling ingredients except flour. Microwave the filling, uncovered, for 5 minutes. This will help soften the apples and get their juices flowing a bit. Stir lightly to combine.

Mix 1/4 cup flour in to the apple and spice mixture.

Streusel topping

In a separate bowl, stir together 1/2 cup sugar and 1/2 cup flour. Using a pastry blender, cut 1 stick of cold butter into the flour mixture until it's crumbly and resembles small pebbles.

To assemble pie:

Preheat oven to 425 degrees with a rack centered in the middle of the oven and the top rack removed to make room for the paper grocery bag. Remove the pie dough from the refrigerator. If the dough has been chilling longer than 30 minutes, let it warm up about 10 minutes and roll into a 12-13 inch circle.

AG SEED FOR SALE

If you have questions regarding this category, call 404-656-3722.

Advertisers must submit a current state laboratory report, fewer than nine months old, for purity, noxious weeds and germination for each seed lot advertised. Ads submitted without this information will not be published. If you are faxing or mailing in an ad, this report needs to be sent along with it. For ads submitted online, the report can be attached using the attachments button. Seed lots must be uniform and cannot exceed 400 50-pound bags. Certain varieties of seed are protected from propagation unless they are grown as a class of certified seed. These include Florida 304, Coker 9152, Coker 9835, 6738 soybean, Haskell, Bennings and others. For questions regarding certified seed, call the Department's Seed Division at 404-656-3635.

Retired Ag leaders volunteer to mentor young farmers, entrepreneurs

By Leslie Davis leslie.davis@agr.georgia.gov

As young professionals and farmers break into the agricultural industry for the first time or plan to expand existing companies, many struggle with unanswered questions about what business practices will best suit their endeavors.

Since its start in 1964, Service Core of Retired Executives has been helping entrepreneurs and small businesses from across the country through personal mentorship with business experts. With more than 10,000 volunteers from 300 chapters nationwide, SCORE aims to reach 1 million clients nationally by 2020.

Because of the program's success in other industries such as technology and banking, business leaders in Moultrie formed a SCORE affiliate to serve young farmers and others looking for opportunities in Georgia's agriculture industry.

"The reason we started SCORE here was because the development authority said, 'Hey, we need some help with our small businesses.

We are chasing the bigger businesses, more jobs, but the bread and butter of every community is the small business community, and they have nobody to go to if they have problems," said Bob Montgomery, co-chair of the Moultrie SCORE. "So, that's what SCORE is about."

Headed up by Montgomery and Lisa Zeanah, Moultrie's SCORE held its first agriculture-focused meeting on Nov. 10. The Moultrie area's best and brightest agriculture industry professionals gathered together in an effort to brainstorm ways to make this branch of the SCORE program as successful as possible.

Industry professionals from institutions including Abraham Baldwin Agricultural College, the University of Georgia, Fort Valley State University and the Georgia Farm Bureau Young Farmer Program suggested that the best way to reach young and upcoming farmers would be through outreach in agricultural colleges throughout the state.

"The students are the future of agriculture. As mentors, our goal is to start these students off on the right foot, helping them to be successful in the long run. That is the underlying mission of the SCORE program. By having these mentors available, students are able to learn from them and hopefully avoid making some preventable mistakes," said Harry Thompson, former executive secretary of the Georgia Young Farmers Program.

Along with young farmers, the SCORE Moultrie chapter also hopes to help those veterans and niche "artisan" product producers attempting to break into to the Ag industry by building connections through the agricultural mentorship program.

"We want to find the best way to get ourselves known to the Ag community so they know what we do," said Montgomery. "Our target market based on the memorandum of understanding and the thought behind this whole process would be young farmers that may be getting into the business new, or may be taking over the existing business."

The SCORE Moultrie chapter is seeking volunteers interested in participating as mentors or mentees. If you or somebody you know is interested in learning more about SCORE Moultrie's agricultural division, contact Bob

FARMERS UNDER 40: Sam Watson

Farm: Chill C Farms Hometown: Moultrie Age: 39

Q: How did you get your start farming?

A: Well, I grew up on a farm and spent most of my childhood around livestock, but the switch to vegetable production was not something I was looking for – it kind of just happened. I usually tell people that most folks have hobbies. Some people play golf, some go fishing ... I had two buddies, and we decided to plant 20 acres of crookneck squash for our hobby. One of us had a piece of land, one had an old sprayer, and one had to get it picked, packed and sold. We made a little money and now 10 years later we own some land, have several sprayers, still pick it, pack it and sell it but on a much larger scale.

Q: What kinds of farming do you primarily spend your time doing?

A: I am the managing partner of Chill C Farms, a 500-acre vegetable operation that grows bell pepper, squash, cabbage, cucumbers, tomatoes and eggplants. I also have a small cow-calf operation that I operate with my Dad.

Q: How do you think being a younger farmer affects you and your business? Do you think this is a positive aspect or does is pose any challenges for you?

A: Being a young farmer comes with advantages and disadvantages. When you're young and just starting out it's hard to obtain the necessary capital for operating expenses and to buy land and equipment. On the other hand, technology is continuing to make agriculture more efficient, and I think younger farmers are more likely to adapt and try new technologies. We tend to be more comfortable with computers, and that will be key to successfully operating a farming enterprise in the future.

Q: What is the best piece of advice someone has given you?

A: Farming is tough and at the end of the day, you can do everything right and still have a tough season. There are so many factors that are beyond our control. You need to have faith to know that God is in control, not you.

Q: Being a farmer while also being a member of the Georgia House of Representatives is certainly time-consuming. How do you manage your schedule?

A: It is tough at times, but growing up

Provided pho

Sam Watson in a field of cabbage at Chill C Farms.

on a farm you learn hard work, you learn responsibility, and you learn to do the duty that lies nearest. My family is very supportive of farming and my State Representative work, and knowing that they understand the workload is comforting. My wife helps me. We are blessed with two sets of grandparents that always offer assistance, and my Dad helps me a great deal with the farm. As my girls get older they are stepping up, too. Instead of just going along for the ride they are learning to work with some of the equipment and take on additional responsibility themselves. I also have several committed employees that are dependable and really go the extra mile to make sure everything is taken care of when I have to be away.

Q: Why did you feel that it was important to become a member of the House?

A: I had the opportunity to participate in several leadership programs and became increasingly aware of the need for strong voices to support and defend agriculture and rural Georgia. As our state continues to grow, much of the population is moving to more urban areas and we need to make sure that rural Georgia – the foundation of our state – remains strong.

Q: What are the challenges you see many Georgia farmers facing that you hope to address legislatively?

A: I serve as chairman of the Rural Caucus and as vice-chair of the Rural Development Council that is currently traveling our state and working to find ways to stop or slow down the dissolving of rural Georgia. We need people to continue to want to live, work and raise a family in rural Georgia. The decline of rural communities hurts farmers and everyone else that is involved in agribusiness. Our council hopes to help solve many of the issues crippling the rural parts of our State.
